"MOON FARM"

Stephen Whitestone, president of the Food Council of the Universe, had called a special meeting of the member countries in Washington. The news he had to present to the members was most alarming.

"Our scientists have produced a very healthy population during the past half century. We have conquered the various diseases and illnesses that baffled mankind a century ago. As a result of reducing the death rate during infancy and also prolonging the life span of people, we have a very large population that must be fed. We have been using every bit of spare earth to raise food. In addition, we have developed hydroponics to a very definite science. We can cultivate plants by feeding them solutions of the proper chemicals. But in spite of all our efforts, we will run short of food at the end of the present year."

There was silence in the great hall when Mr. Whitestone had finished speaking. But there was no air of panic. You could sense the feeling that something would be done to meet the situation. Roger Groveland, representative of Great Britain, arose from his seat and spoke.

"Mr. President, and honored members, I have this to say. We knew that sooner or later such a situation would arise. I am therefore authorized to say my government will place at the disposal of the Food Council whatever funds may be necessary to undertake anything necessary to produce the needed food for people."

Everyone applauded this statement. Other members then arose and also offered the needed money to carry on any kind of research. Mr. Whitestone then introduced Professor John Horton who had something to say about the subject. He was a middle-aged man with a most friendly smile.

"We know how to raise food. That is no longer our problem. What we need is a greater area so that we may have more food. And such an area is available. I refer, of course, to the Moon. It is completely uninhabited. We have three patrol stations located on the dark side of the Moon. We can use most of the Moon's area to cultivate food. How are the chemicals to be obtained? From the Moon's own rocks. Preliminary results in our own laboratory show definitely that these rocks do have most of the needed chemicals. Water will be scarce. Moon Patrol number one reports that there is water in the form of ice in the deep crevices. We will have to melt this ice to obtain the needed water. However the necessary atmosphere would have to be created.

Our lunar farm will have to be a large transparent air-conditioned dome which will admit the necessary light. Beneath the dome we will grow bumper crops. Because of gravitational pull, gravity-sap will almost stream up into foliage and fruit. Hence we will have gigantic cabbages, carrots, and apples.

The farmers on this planet of ours have always been a patient lot. They toil and sweat for weeks and even months, before a single crop can be harvested. But on the moon things will be different since crops would grow with astonishing rapidity. Because of the Moon's period of rotation vegetables would be ready for harvesting in two weeks. However, a lunar worker would have to carry a tank of oxygen on his back and breathe through a mask if he wasn't working inside a dome farm. When the food is harvested it can be sent back to earth in a space missile. Within a period of three months after landing on the Moon, we should have our first harvest."

There was a period of discussion over the plan and finally it was agreed that the first group of scientists and workers should leave Earth in a month. Professor John Horton signified his readiness to take charge of matters.

"We will provide the necessary spaceship," said the representative of the United States. "And under such able leadership we know that the plan will succeed."

During the month, the Professor was busy assembling the men to go with him as well as the materials. A combination freighter and passenger spaceship, The Dolemnus, was reconditioned and put at the disposal of the group. And on February 17, 2045, the ship was almost ready to leave Earth-port. All except one man had reported aboard the spaceship.

"Captain Edward Pierson was suddenly taken ill," said Mr. Whitestone. "He is your oxygen man! Without him you can't get a certificate to leave Earth. Now what are we going to do?"

William Simpson, the chemical expert, had a suggestion to make. He pointed to a well built man who was one of the guests in the briefing and assembly room. For the leaders of the expedition had at once returned to the briefing and assembly room to discuss the matter.

"Robert Marson is a well known sportsman. He also holds a license as an oxygen man. He owns his own spaceship and likes to fly into outer space. Surely, if we tell him about the emergency, he would help."

The situation was explained to the sportsman who understood the seriousness of the matter.

"Of course I'll go with you," he replied. "But just one favor. I want to take my fishing equipment with me. Who knows? Maybe there are some new variety of fish on the moon. In an hour I'll have my stuff and be aboard your spaceship."

The schedule was delayed exactly one hour and The Dolemnus, under the command of Major Alexander Birkos, left for her destination, the Moon. The ship was hoisted onto the launching platform and then hurled into outer space. The voyage was pleasant and nothing unexpected happened. Patrol station, number two, on the Moon, was the exact destination. Captain Roy Lisner, in charge of that patrol station, had been notified about the coming of the spaceship. And also its purpose.

"So they are going to try to raise vegetables and fruits on the Moon," he remarked to one of his men. "The rock surface is so tough you can't even go through it with a diamond drill."

The spaceship landed and the men soon started on their assigned tasks. Under the law, oxygen tanks had to be replenished once every day from a main feeder tank. That gave Robert Marson sufficient time to do some exploration and also look for a fishing spot. The workers assembled a large dome. Then under it they built trays. Into these trays were poured a combination of chemicals obtained from the rocks on the Moon. Then the necessary seeds were dropped into the solution. At the end of two weeks the first crop was ready to be harvested. But something had gone wrong.

"Instead of obtaining gigantic vegetables and fruits, we are getting the exact reverse," sighed Professor John Horton. "I guess you can say we have miniature vegetables and fruits. It will take some long patient research to find out what happened. However, we should be thankful we have had this measure of success. With a harvest every two weeks, we will be able to feed the increasing Earth population."

Robert Marson volunteered to take charge of sending back the first food in a space missile. The men from the patrol station helped him pack the food. And the missile soon was on its way back home. The members of the expedition took a break until they would receive their next instructions from Earth.

"They may tell us to call the entire thing off," suggested one of the men. "When you expect something big and get it small, you sort of feel upset."

The official message came via the patrol station. Captain Roy Lisner delivered it in person to Professor Horton who hesitated and then opened the envelope. His eyes almost popped out of his head as he called together the members of the expedition.

"Let me read this message to you," he said with joy in his voice.

"The Food Council of the Universe sends its congratulations to the members of the first expedition to raise food on the Moon. The vegetables and fruits were gigantic. We never imagined they could be so large. The problem is solved! We also appreciate the kindness of Mr. Marson in sending us several cases of fish he caught. They were enjoyable and well iced and hence preserved."

Professor Horton went up right to Mr. Marson. He was about to say something when the sportsman spoke first.

"Hope you aren't angry because I sent some fish I caught back to Earth?"

"A million thanks," replied the Professor. "You saved the day for us. The vegetables and fruits were small because we didn't have the right water ratio. The evaporation of water from the ice around your fish made the vegetables and fruits swell up. Again, a million thanks to a good sportsman and fisherman who showed us how to raise gigantic vegetables and fruits."

The End.

WERE ENGAGED ALREADY, ARNIE?

I WAS -- UNTIL LAST WEEK!
JEAN GAVE ME BACK THE RING! SHE ACCUSED ME OF TWO-TIMING!

NO DICE, ARNIE! WE JUST CAN'T AFFORD THE STOP!

I KNEW ARNIE DIDN'T LIKE IT, BUT I STUCK TO MY FIRST ARGUMENT!
THEN, ABOUT HALF WAY BETWEEN VENUS AND THE MOON...

HEY, YOU'RE OFF
THE SPACE LANES, ARNIE! HOW COME?

POWER LEAK
SOMEWHERE!
I'M HEADING FOR THAT ASTEROID!

ARNIE MADE A CAREFUL CHECK OF THE SHIP ON THE SMALL BARREN
ASTEROID!
I ASSISTED!
THERE WAS ONE THING ABOUT ARNIE --
NO ONE COULD TOUCH HIM AT HIS BUSINESS...

HOW ABOUT IT, ARNIE?
ARE WE GOING TO STALL IN THE MIDDLE OF NOWHERE?

NOT WHEN I GET THROUGH, PAL!

WE SPENT TWO DAYS, EARTH RECKONING,
MAKING INSPECTIONS AND REPAIRS, THEN WE WERE OFF...

WHAT DO YOU THINK,
ARNIE? WILL SHE
MAKE IT?

IN MY OPINION, YES!
I THINK WE'D BETTER
STOP OFF AT VENUS,
HOWEVER, BETTER TO CHECK UP THAN TO WISH WE HAD!

A NEW SCIENTIFIC TOY!

NUTTY PUTTY

ONLY $1.00

NUTTY PUTTY...

real crazy!!! A liquid solid! Amazing and fun! Roll into a ball, it bounces! Hit with hammer—it shatters! Pull it slowly—it stretches! Press it on a comic book and it steals a perfect impression in color...Leave it alone and it sinks into a tired little puddle. Comes in a leakproof plastic egg...You'll relax with this one—and really have a ball. It is made of the wonder material your parents have read about in Life, Time, and other magazines. Truly a great new toy. This is the real THING.

AND THEN...

YOU'D BETTER GET OUT YOUR OLD SUIT, PETE! VINYE IS GOING BACK TO EARTH WITH US! WE'RE BEING MARRIED AS SOON AS WE ARRIVE THERE!

I'M GLAD FOR YOU BOTH, BUT MOSTLY I THINK ARNIE IS THE LUCKY ONE!

WE MADE OUR RUN TO MERCURY, DISPOSED OF OUR CARGO, AND STOPPED OFF AT VENUS ON RETURN! THE GOODBYES SORT OF GOT ME...

MY BABY! THE EARTHMAN WILL TAKE CARE OF YOU & YOU WILL VISIT ME?

OH, YES, PAPA! I WILL CALL OFTEN!

WHEN WE WERE AIRBORNE THE FIRST OF MY DOUBTS BEGAN TO BE REALIZED...

COLD, ARNIE! IT IS SO COLD!

THAT'S WHY YOU'RE WEARING THIS HEATED SUIT, HONEY! HERE, PUT ON THE HELMET!

THE SUIT WAS NOT ENOUGH, SO WE FITTED UP THE SMALL REAR CABIN...

YOU'LL BE COMFORTABLE HERE, DARLING! THE CABIN'S TEMPERATURE IS REGULATED TO VENUS! STAY HERE AND WE'LL BURN THE SPACE WAYS TO EARTH!

I AM SO HAPPY! I WILL WAIT ONLY FOR YOU TO COME FOR ME, MY ARNIE!

WHAT ABOUT IT, ARNIE? SUPPOSE THE EARTH'S TEMPERATURE IS STILL TOO COLD FOR HER?

SHE'LL GROW USED TO IT SAME AS WE DID! IF NECESSARY I'LL TAKE HER TO THE TROPICS!

WELL, WE LANDED AT THE SPACEPORT AND WE TOLD VINYE SHE COULD TAKE OFF THE SPACE SUIT, THAT WE'D GIVE HER OUR HEAVY COATS! WE WAITED EAGERLY! THEN SHE OPENED HER CABIN DOOR...

AIIYYY... LOOK!

GOOD GRIEF!

OUT OF THIS WORLD

I SHOULD HAVE KEPT ARNIE IN THE SHIP-- IMPRISON-ED HIM,
BUT I THOUGHT HE MEANT IT! THE NEXT MORNING
I CALLED AT THE SHIP WHERE VINYE HAD STAYED OVERNIGHT...
THERE WAS A LETTER...

THAT SAME DAY WE TOOK OFF! I DIDN'T KNOW IF WE'D MAKE IT, AND IF WE DID, WHAT THE KING'S REACTION WOULD BE! I SEEMED TO FEEL I WAS LEAVING EARTH FOR GOOD...

WELL, THE STAY WAS PERMANENT, ALL RIGHT! AND I WON'T SAY I NEVER MISS THE EARTH OR THE SPACEWAYS! BUT WHAT IS THAT TO MY BEAUTIFUL VINYE? MY LOVELY WIFE...
ONCE MORE HER OWN SELF IN HER NATIVE SETTING!

ARE YOU FINISHED WITH WRITING THE STORY,
MY DARLING?

YEAH, IT'S A STORY ABOUT A VERY LOVELY GIRL AND A LUCKY GUY!
WOULD YOU LIKE ME TO READ IT TO YOU?

END.
